

A Big Fish

by Leung Ngo Yi Angel

Wilson and Ricky went fishing by a river last week. The weather was good. It was cool and cloudy. That was a nice day for fishing.

At the beginning, Wilson got a lot of small fish. He felt excited but Ricky felt bored because he got nothing. He waited patiently anyway.

Suddenly, Ricky's fishing rod was shaking and it was heavy.

He screamed for help, 'Can you help me?'

Wilson said, 'I don't want to help you.'

Ricky tried to pull up the fish but he failed. He knew it was a big head fish. Although he didn't succeed in the first attempt, he didn't give up. Ricky was good at fishing and he knew the best way to catch the fish. He needed to slowly wrestle with it.

After more than 10 minutes of hard work, the big fish had no strength anymore. Ricky knew his chance was coming, he used all his energy to pull up the rod. Finally Ricky caught it successfully.

Ricky didn't share the fish with Wilson because he didn't give a hand when Ricky needed help.
